Bryan in the 21st Century:
It’s New . . . It’s the Same

What's New?

In American society 'new' is good

"New" means recent, improved, cutting-edge and with it. That's why we Americans are always updating our computers, cell phones, cars and spouses. Reruns and retreats are out of step with the necessary progress of our culture.

Solomon wondered out loud if there were anything really new in life. "Is there anything of which one can say, 'Look! This is new?' It was here already, long ago; it was here before our time" (Ecclesiastes 1:10).

Of course, Solomon’s pessimistic and existential perspective limited his view to "under the sun." When he raised his eyes to heaven, then he began to see things new. In fact, it is only because of God that anything is genuinely new. Here's a brief list:

- He gives us a new song to sing (Psalm 33:3; 40:3)
- He brings in a new covenant through Christ (Luke 22:20; Hebrews 9:15)
- He gives us a new life (Acts 5:20)
- We have a new spirit (Ezekiel 11:19; Romans 7:6)
- We are new creations (2 Corinthians 5:17; Ephesians 2:23-24)
- Ultimately, He will make everything new (Isaiah 65:17; Revelation 21:5)

Not a bad list of promises! Add to them the constant promise that His mercies are new every morning (Lamentations 3:22-23) and we have quite a case for God being the most "happening" Person around.

So our Bryan College theme this year is "All Things New." We have new buildings, new programs and a new campus. But we have the same God who ensures that the best of what Bryan has always been is renewed and strengthened. "Christ Above All" takes on a fresh commitment in a world that desperately needs hope and truth.

So, what's new?

Everything

William E. Brown
President
Bryan celebrates ‘new’ on a foundation of faith

It's easy to look at the Bryan College campus and see that "All Things New" is more than just a catchy theme for a new academic year. A closer look reveals some traditional foundations for the "new."

President Dr. William E. Brown said II Corinthians 5:17 is the scriptural basis for the theme. "The essence of being in Christ is that every day is new. What has happened in the past 18 months – the fire, the change of millennia – allows us to make what appear to be huge, drastic changes at the college. While there are changes, we want to make certain we hang on to the essentials – the Lordship of Jesus Christ, the grace of God which transforms, the call to be holy before God."

Trustee Ralph Green, a member of the Class of 1956, said the emphasis on "All Things New" is in keeping with the college's commitment to a quality, Christ-centered education. "You have to approach today's college students differently than you did," he said. "Our commitment to the authority and veracity of Scripture is bottom line. But sometimes there is a tension in adapting to cultural changes because allegiance to those eternal

Below, students who returned to Bryan early for the annual leadership conference spent part of their time helping move books into the new library. Teams unloaded boxes, which had been moved from storage to the sidewalk in front of the building, and carried books to waiting shopping carts. The carts, labeled with catalog number categories, were pushed inside to designated areas where students sorted the volumes and placed them on shelves. Library Director Laura Kaufmann said staff members and volunteers would "read" the shelves to fine-tune the students' work.
truths can waver without realizing it. Sometimes it is hard to differentiate between what is change and what is a threat. The alumni on the board (of trustees) are sensitive to that."

Bryan's most obvious new features are the library and the rebuilt Administration Building. Beneath that surface, however, one finds new approaches to the quality education that long has been a Bryan distinctive.

"What's new? I'll answer that the way our alumni do," Dr. Brown said.

* "The way Bryan looks. We have updated, state-of-the-art facilities.
* "Computer technology. In information technology, we're up there with the best.
* "Bryan's ability to engage our culture. In the Christian community, there has been a sense of isolation or insulation from our culture. At Bryan, we acknowledge and train students to engage that culture. We are looking with new eyes at the world around us and realize that the message of Christ is to engage culture without compromising our faith. There is a new spirit for us to be Christians IN today's culture."

Although Bryan has stressed teaching students about worldviews, Dr. Brown said the emphasis has become more "worldview education." "This really means educating with breadth and depth. In many ways, we're returning to the old way to educate, to look at truth, rather than simply at competing ideas," he said.

"Christians used to divide the world into Christians and non-Christians – an 'us vs. them' approach. We are training our students to approach the world with an understanding that everybody has and lives a worldview. That becomes a means by which we understand the world around us. We ask, 'What do you believe and why do you believe it? I want to understand that so I can understand you.'

"It's really the principle of 1 Corinthians 9, that we become all things to all people so we can share the truth. We want to be as contemporary as we can without sacrificing quality."

Even though quality is a hallmark of a Bryan education, "quality is always a moving target," Dr. Brown said. "What was quality 10 years ago may be mediocre today. Just because you have a quality product doesn’t mean you don’t try to make it better."

Mr. Green added he and other trustees are heartened by nationally standardized test scores that consistently show Bryan students among the best in the nation academically. "You want your school to get better," he said. "Student rankings on national tests, the ACT scores of entering freshmen, have to be viewed as positive indications of what’s going on here."

For Bryan College, that means physical improvements such as new buildings or new technology – computer SMARTBoards and Internet access in classrooms, for example – or changes to the curriculum.

The new athletic training major, for example, has raised questions among alumni concerning its "fit" at Bryan. "I respond by pointing out that new state and national standards will soon require every high school that has an athletic program to have a certified trainer on staff. We see an opportunity, because sports are so big and because coaches and trainers have the opportunity to influence kids, to prepare students to make a difference in this field," Dr. Brown explained.

Mr. Green said the "new" Bryan College shares several important characteristics with the Bryan he attended in the 1950’s. "Bryan still is a close-knit community. This seems very important to the students I’ve met with during trustee meetings.

"Dedication of the faculty is similar. The personal sacrifice probably was greater then – there were times when there was no money at the end of the month and the faculty didn’t get paid. But what the faculty and staff have been through during the past year is a tremendous testimony as well.

"And there is a desire for service. In my era, there was more leaning toward pastoral, missionary or educational service. Today, there’s a little less interest in the formal Christian vocations, but students still want to make a difference in today’s world," he said.

As Mr. Green pointed to the dedication of the faculty, Dr. Brown added that a quality faculty is vital for the type of school Bryan is and wants to become. "We can have a good administration and good curriculum and still not be a good school," he said. "The faculty must embody and inculcate quality. Faculty members must have the right degree, a love for Jesus Christ and a desire to mentor students.

"Although we hope to grow to between 800 and 1,000 in the next few years, we will maintain the personal relationships that are so important. We plan things to bring faculty and staff together with students so there can be significant interaction with significant people.

"With the new steps we are taking, we believe that Bryan College will be better in a way that honors our Lord, better because we provide a cutting-edge education that retains the character that has defined Bryan College through the decades."
MEN’S SOCCER Bigger, Stronger, Faster

Men’s soccer Coach Sandy Zensen is hoping a bigger, stronger, faster team will continue the Lions’ winning ways as they open their 2001 season.

Two drawbacks, however, are causing the coach some concern: the team lost seven starters to graduation, including Moises Drumond, the leading scorer and Region 12 Player of the Year; James Heschon, the 1999 Region and Conference Keeper of the Year; and Peter Mitchell, an AAC all-conference defender.

“We’ll have to change our style of play to adapt,” the coach said. “We’ll be physical, big and strong and will use that to our advantage.”

Coach Zensen is looking for Isidro Loaiza, an all-conference defender last year, to anchor the defense. He will be joined by Jamal Marshall and Henry Barrios, returning players, and Russell Courtney, a freshman.

VOLLEYBALL SQUAD SHOWS POTENTIAL

A young squad with lots of potential is how Jerri Beck evaluates the 2001 edition of Bryan’s volleyball team.

With only one senior and two juniors, Coach Beck said the key to this season will be “how quickly we can tap into the new people we have, and how quickly they can fit into the speed of college volleyball.”

The coach said last year’s new, faster offensive scheme “set a good pace for this year. We have some more height this year and are trying to work that into the same style of offense. At the same time, that should help our defense because we’ll be able to put blocks up better.

LADY LIONS READY FOR CHALLENGE

The Lady Lions kicked off their 2001 season with only two seniors and without the help of last year's most valuable player, but Coach Marc Neddo is hoping the team will rise to the challenge.

"I'm looking for the experienced players to raise their game and for the freshmen to jump in and help us," he said. "In the preseason, the freshmen have performed at a high level."

Last year's most valuable player and first-team All Conference midfielder Aubre Mjolhus broke her foot before arriving at school this fall and has been lost for the season. "I'm looking for Tammy Smith (a junior) and Katie Mowery (a freshman) to take the lead in the middle," the coach said.

He said he expects senior Becky Kalz to anchor the defense, and is counting on freshman Abby Sneed to lead scoring efforts. "Abby is living up to my expectations," he said.

"We face very strong competition in the conference," the coach said. "We couldn't afford to lose a key player like we did. The returning players have recognized the need to demand more of themselves. They're playing with more confidence and assuming more responsibility on the field, and the freshmen have come in with a high level."

Jon Abercrombie is a 1969 Bryan graduate who resides with his wife of 30 years, Frances, in Atlanta, Ga. Jon was a standout soccer player and during his senior year was the student body president.

"My favorite classes were Greek, and Doc Anderson was undoubtedly my favorite professor," John said. "Doc had so many incredible quips and sayings that I remember to this day, sayings such as, 'What you see when you don't have a gun.'"

"My favorite quote had to do with his sympathy for all students who were not Greek majors," Jon continued. "He called them the 'great hoi polloi' or in English, 'the great unwashed herd.' I still have my Greek textbook with several of his quotes notated inside the front cover."

After leaving Bryan with a B.A. in Greek, John moved to Jackson, Miss., where he interned with Youth For Christ. Jon then moved back to his hometown, Atlanta, to serve with Youth for Christ and after a few years went on to work with YFC in Memphis. While in Memphis, he earned a masters degree in counseling. In 1980 Jon returned to Atlanta where he has remained.

Jon became executive director of FCS Urban Ministries, and the founder of Charis Community Housing. This was the beginning of Jon’s activity with homelessness and affordable housing. He is the founder of the Task Force for the Homeless and the Housing Forum, both of which provide networking opportunities for an array of people seeking housing solutions. Currently, on behalf of FCS, Jon is director of Common Focus, a new venture to study, teach and advocate for a new vision of community building.

Jon’s experience in housing and community building includes construction of single-family homes using volunteers; renovation of the old Atlanta Stockade (prison) into Glen Castle, efficiency apartments for the working poor; and advocacy work on the Land Bank Authority, a public agency created to free tax-delinquent land for community development. He received a Point of Light Award from President George H.W. Bush for his work on the Glen Castle housing project.

"My education at Bryan helped me develop Christian leadership skills that I never would have received at larger schools," Jon remarked. "And many of the great friendships I developed there I still have today."

Jon is leading a community-wide dialogue on the future of public schools in Decatur, Ga. In that racially diverse school system, Jon is leading a group of more than 600 parents that have agreed to participate in a series of facilitator-led small groups.

"The greatest power of the Gospel in the world today is found in reconciliation. Our role of making peace is of utmost importance," Jon explained. "I’ve really learned that it is much more important for Christians to work for reconciliation than to wage a cultural war."

Enrollment steady as 2001-02 school year opens

A new campus welcomed students as they arrived for Bryan's 72nd academic year this fall, even as finishing touches were being applied to some of the new buildings.

Mark Cruver, director of admissions and enrollment management, said 164 freshmen and transfer students checked in as orientation began on Aug. 18, to be joined by 386 returning students on Aug. 20. With 43 ASPIRE degree completion students and 19 part-time students, Bryan's 2001 enrollment is 612, compared with the 2000 figure of 616.

About a quarter of the new students expressed interest in studying biology or exercise science, another quarter were interested in English, history or education, with communication arts and Christian education and Bible the next most popular fields.

During convocation, the formal opening of school, students were challenged to love God with their minds. Ken Myers, president of Mars Hill Audio and a former editor of Eternity Magazine, said that command "has special weight for students. It's God's calling for you right now. The work God gives each of us to do is a calling through which He will accomplish His purposes in history."

He suggested that knowledge of God is not simply knowledge of theology, but of the person of God and of His creation. "Solomon's wisdom began with fear of the Lord, but progressed as he studied the world. One reason I believe Christians have disappeared from the culture is that we have disappeared from the study of creation."

Mr. Myers challenged the students to "bring every thought captive to the obedience of Christ" as they prepare to follow God's calling for them this year.

Starting the school year was a little rough for some students, but some suffered extra blows. Actually, this conflict was part of the game at the all-school picnic at the end of the first week of school. The four classes challenged each other in a variety of contents before everyone sat down to lunch.

New faculty appointments for the 2001-02 year include:

Keith W. Lindley, assistant professor of modern languages and linguistics. He has a B.A. in French, with extensive work in Spanish and Latin; the M.A. in French Literature, with a Spanish minor; and is a candidate for the Ph.D. degree in French, with a Spanish minor, from the University of Florida.

Keith and his wife, Suzanne, are parents of two children. Suzanne will teach an advanced Spanish course this fall.

J. Daniel Wilson, assistant professor of biblical studies. He has the B.A. in history from the University of Memphis, the M.Div. from Mid-America Baptist Theological Seminary, Memphis, Tenn., and is a candidate for the Ph.D. degree in New Testament and Greek at Mid-America.

Dan and his wife, Heather, have one daughter.

Lloyd Milligan, missionary in residence and will teach phonetics and phonology. He and his wife, Ruth, are members of Wycliffe Bible Translators and served 18 years in Papua New Guinea. He holds the Master's degree in Linguistics from the University of Texas at Arlington.

Lloyd and Ruth have four children. Also, Dr. Ron Petitte, formerly registrar, has been appointed associate professor of political science and director of the Honors Program.

Marc Neddo, '92, formerly assistant to the registrar, has been appointed instructor in physical education in addition to his duties as head women's soccer coach.

New part-time instructors include:

James Arnold, '98, physical education and women's basketball coach; Samuel Olsen, Spanish; Dr. Doug Russell, Bible; and Kathy Russell, psychology.

New staff appointments include Mark Anderson, '99 computer technician; Nikkii Arnold, advancement assistant; Tara Ballard, '00, library teaching technology liaison; Jelana Cruse, '01, admissions counselor; Alice Gray, '83, president's receptionist; Beth Hixson, financial services clerk; Janice Pendergrass, advancement assistant; and Janet Platt, registrar.
Ten freshmen have been awarded Glenna Ware Presidential Scholarships to Bryan College for the 2001-2002 academic year.

Kimberly Barlow, daughter of Mark and Marsha Barlow of Clearwater, Fla., Education/Psychology. Kimberly, a graduate of Lakeside Christian School in Clearwater, was valedictorian, a member of the National Honor Society, student council, captain of the volleyball team, played basketball and golf, was a member of the vocal ensemble and was a class officer. After graduating, she hopes to work in a health-related field.

Paul Downer, son of Phil and Susy Downer of Signal Mountain, Tenn., Social Science. Paul, a home school graduate, was a member of the YMCA Youth Leadership Chattanooga program and the Youth City Council. He was named a National Merit Commended student. He has spoken at Promise Keepers rallies and various character and leadership development programs. After graduating, he is considering a career in business.

Megan Tyser, daughter of Joel and Madonna Tyser of Mexico, Mo., Natural Science. Megan, a home school graduate, was a member of the YMCA swim team, the Home School Association drama team and a political campaign volunteer. She was a volunteer at the Audrain Medical Center and was active in the American Legion/Youth Auxiliary. She is listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students. After graduating, she plans to attend medical school.

Katherine Ruth Halvorson, daughter of Arthur and Paula Halvorson of Riva, Md., Humanities. Katherine, a graduate of South River High School in Edgewater, was a member of the track and water polo teams, competition chorus, student government, National Honor Society and was named to Who's Who Among American High School Students.

Virginia Macha, daughter of Mark and Paula Macha of Goldsboro, N.C., Humanities. Jennifer Parks, daughter of Roger and Carol Parks of Prattville, Ala., Natural Science. Jennifer, a graduate of Victory Baptist School in Millbrook, was captain of the basketball and volleyball teams. She was named to the Principal's Honor Roll and was listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students. She was a volunteer at Baptist Hospital in Montgomery. After graduating, she plans to attend medical school.

Jessica Raff, daughter of James and Sheila Raff of Greenville, S.C., Humanities. Jessica, a graduate of Bob Jones Academy in Greenville, was president of her senior class, a member of the National Forensic League and played soccer and volleyball. She was a volunteer at community missions and the Briarwood Nursing Home.

Catherine Strode, daughter of Tom and Linda Strode of Fredericksburg, Va., Humanities. Catherine, a graduate of Fredericksburg Christian High School, was a member of the National Honor Society, was captain of the volleyball and basketball teams and was a class officer for three years. She was elected as an Outstanding Christian Leader and a Distinguished High School Student by the Association of Christian Schools International. After graduating, she plans to be a high school English teacher.

Nate Elkington, son of Patricia Elkington of Fort Wayne, Ind., Biblical Studies. Nate, a graduate of Carroll High School in Fort Wayne, was a member of the National Honor Society, the newspaper staff, the soccer, wrestling and track teams and played in the band. He was named to the Academic All-State soccer team and received an academic honors diploma. After graduating, he plans to enter vocational Christian ministry.

Eva Holder, daughter of Robert and Martha Holder of Knoxville, Tenn., Music. Eva, a home school student, was active in piano competitions at the state and local levels and taught private piano lessons. After graduating, she hopes to work in overseas missions.
Alumni Association

with a mission

With a rapidly developing campus, steady increase in enrolment and more active alumni than ever, Bryan College stands at the threshold of yet another "All Things New" opportunity: the launching of an innovative Alumni Association.

In January, 2002, Bryan College Alumni Ministries will establish a new Alumni Association with membership applications accepted beginning in February. The new association will have many of the benefits you would expect from an organization of this magnitude, but with a couple of unique twists.

First, its purpose and focus: to help kids. The slogan the Bryan College Alumni Association has adopted is, "We Put Kids Through College!"

Second: spouses and parents of Bryan College Alumni can join the spouses’ or parents’ club and receive all the benefits of their alumni counterparts as well as sharing in the joy of a combined purpose, helping a kid in need.

Here are just some of the benefits you will receive when you become a member of the Bryan College Alumni Association:

- Two free meal passes for the Student Life Center Dining Hall good any time during the year.
- A campus visit badge that states your name (including maiden), your class year and a slogan that reads, "I put kids through college!"
- Access (with your own Internet connection) to the Bryan Library global referencing and research data base; your choice of one of the following: (1) Masterplots package -- includes the full contents of 23 sets of reference books--110 volumes with 15,865 essays on works of literature and author biographies published by Salem Press. (2) "FACTS Online" package, which includes World News / Reuters News Wire Service; Today's Science on File (an excellent source for articles and biographies), world almanac and an encyclopedia. Or (3) "Knowledge Source" package -- Select, full-text articles from thousands of domestic and international newspapers, magazines, journals and U.S. government publications.

- Opportunity to participate in alumni-specific endowment-building projects each year that are designed to put kids through college.

- Opportunities for recognition for you or your business in national publications such as World Magazine, Christianity Today and Campus Life.

- Bryan College Alumni Association "I put kids through college" license plate or window decal.

All these benefits are yours to enjoy with your annual membership fee of $25. There will be lifetime membership opportunities as well.

Look for the All Things New Bryan College Alumni Association brochure in your mailbox this coming January. With our combined efforts we can all do something that most of us would not be able to do by ourselves (Ecclesiastes 4). Join the team that can make a dream come true for deserving kids and let's Put Kids Through College!

(Ecclesiastes 4:9 Two people can accomplish more than twice as much as one; they get a better return for their labor. (10) If one person falls, the other can reach out and help. But people who are alone when they fall are in real trouble. (11) And on a cold night, two under the same blanket can gain warmth from each other. But how can one be warm alone? (12) A person standing alone can be attacked and defeated, but two can stand back-to-back and conquer. Three are even better, for a triple-braided cord is not easily broken.)

Walking in Grace...

Members of the Class of 1976 gathered for their 25th anniversary reunion in August. Fellowship, updates on campus development and an introduction to worldview education highlighted the event. LAUNCHING INTO THE NEW CENTURY

Bryan College’s most successful building program ever, the Student Life Center, is now a prominent landmark on the campus.

Now, in the most ambitious undertaking since Bryan College was organized, the Trustees and Administration invite you to be a part of Phase II of The New Century Campaign. The New Century Campaign will provide the resources necessary to attract students who share our goal of making a difference in their world through a quality, Christ-centered education.

Elements of the New Century Bryan Campaign Include:

- Construction of a new Athletics/Wellness Center $6.2 million
- Construction of a new residence hall $5.5 million
- Renovation/Addition to Rudd Performing Arts Center $1.0 million
- Underwriting scholarships (5 years) $6.0 million
- Endowment for Worldview Studies Institute $2.0 million
- Endowment for Athletics Facilities/Programs $2.7 million
- Endowment for five faculty chairs of excellence $2.5 million
- New entrance for the college $1.0 million
- TOTAL $24.9 million

Already, gifts totaling more than $5 million have been given or pledged to the New Century Campaign. We urge you to prayerfully consider your participation as Bryan College takes a bold new step in faith.

Look for information about how you can help Bryan College continue to educate students to become servants of Christ to make a difference in today’s world.
Summit at Bryan College
July 14-26, 2002

Fifty percent of young people who claim to be Christians when they enter college claim not to be Christians when they graduate.

Don’t be a statistic. Be a Leader!
